The day began with one shock – James Dodds taken to hospital in the early morning with serious food poisoning. Five attempts at raising a reserve failed so the Cornish Organiser agreed to me playing in order to give his lads a game. We duly won the foursomes 3:1. Two calls came in that morning, one advising of the passing away of Jack Roberts and the other that James Dodds had been treated, discharged and desperately wanted to play. In consultation with Cornwall and his parents he was allowed to play but using a buggy because of his weakness. In a move of quid pro quo in order to recognise the generous agreement by Cornwall it was agreed to play off ¾ handicap. The Cornish team were all 11 or well over with the exception of Conor Warne. The result of this “never to be repeated” agreement are clear to see. Though the boys fought hard we lost seven of the matches – all pretty close. However we should have done much better! Praise should go to James for playing the full round and to Harry Rickman for securing the solitary half. Hospitality and catering was excellent and the all day attendance by Ian Clark and the parents and supporters warmly appreciated. The course was in great condition and the day brilliantly bright and warm.
